Jasmin Vardimon Company's dancers (24/06/2019)

As company members, our experience is that the Jasmin Vardimon Company's working ethos is based on collaboration and equal voices.

Throughout the creation and rehearsal processes, Jasmin values each of our contributions. She asks for individual opinions and responses, she listens, considers, and engages with each dancer as we create together under her guidance.

The company believes in nurturing and developing the dancer's individual qualities, and often supports our development and growth even after we have stopped dancing with the company and embarked on our own creative path.

Whilst in the company, we are challenged and inspired to engage with new and varied ways of expressing and performing, so we develop together artistically; each dancer is helped to grow, become versatile and work towards achieving their best.

Jasmin encourages emotional generosity towards the work and towards each other.

Many of the themes that run through Jasmin's work deal with our shared humanity and universal human rights, such as Freedom of Speech, Freedom of Expression and Gender Equality, reflecting her belief in universal human rights. She is determined to offer equal opportunity, by always holding open auditions that anyone can attend, with no pre-selection. The company is passionately committed to the sharing of knowledge and experience.

The Jasmin Vardimon Company studio is a safe environment to express individuality without unfair judgment, and with support and encouragement to develop and grow as artists and as considerate human beings.
